I understand you had two cordial conversations with my husband today, and we both really want to help you. However, it seems like this is totally one-sided. I would like to pursue pre-probable cause conciliation and to provide to you all documents, affidavits, court filings, articles, etc. that you request, but we only have your and Mr. Turley's verbal assurances not to penalize me for my cooperation in continuing to help with your investigation.

I would like something in writing assuring me that our verbal understandings are correct. Otherwise, I feel as though I'm digging my own grave by continuing to help you.

Joan Aikens' letter of May 6, 1998 caused me great concern. Given the reputation of David Boies and his well known government connections, I hope you understand my fears. I stand ready to send you the documentation you discussed with my husband today as soon as I receive your faxed response.
